

River Health

depends on sediment travelling naturally down a river

Climate change will likely increase sediment management challenges in rivers

Good sediment management practices should improve the resilience of river infrastructure and ecosystems

